Cats kill billions of wild animals every year and represent a serious ecological threat to our environments. They kill more native animals than any other human-related cause, such as car collisions and pesticide consumption, and are considered the greatest human-linked threat to wildlife in the US.

A feral cat is a freely ranging wild-living domestic cat (Felis catus) that avoids human contact: it does not allow itself to be handled or touched, and usually remains hidden from humans. Some feral cats may become more comfortable with people who regularly feed them, but even with long-term attempts at socialization they usually remain fearful.
